

LNGStudy

From: Zapp One [REDACTED]
Sent: Thursday, January 24, 2013 12:23 PM
To: LNGStudy
Subject: LNG Study Comments

Department of Engery,

The thought of exporting domestic natural gas is just against all that the current and may pervious administration have attempted, which is energy independence. Current manufactures and utilities are undergoing multi million dollar upgrades to convert from coal to natural gas to supply their energy needs. Exporting this valuable United States natural resource would undermine not only economic independence it also places the country other risks regarding political instability regarding the source of other fossile fuels.

By fostering and developing natural gas here and keeping the precious resource here for manuaufactures and utilities use grows our domestic economy, provides energy indpendence and enhances national security.

Please do not allow expansion or any export of LNG.

Please feel free to call on me for any further comments.

Jeffrey L Eastman
[REDACTED]